Aimless

Volition

The curtain falls, down she goes
So long worth
All the applause seems beautiful
It's got a hold on her
She whispers, "I'll go home
And then she's reminded
That she doesn't know where that is"Thought she belonged
But she knows she don't Thought she had love
It is not enough
The pain inside is speaking to her
How could she feel like this
So aimless?His glass falls
Breaks into a thousand pieces
Spilling out all he's tried to hide
I only wanted to be strong
To be brave
But it's driven everyone awayThought he belonged
But he knows he don't
Thought he had love
It is not enough oh oh
The pain inside is speaking to him
How could he feel like this
So aimless?I've been him, and I've been her Covered up under the dirt
I want to get out
I want to be free
And know where I'm goin'
Where I'm goin'Thought I belonged
But I know I don't
Thought I had love
But it is not enough oh oh
An aching inside speaking to me
How could I feel like this
So aimless?They've always known, this wasn't home
They've always known, this wasn't home
I've always known, this wasn't home
I've always known, this wasn't home

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/