

Start Again

Bret Michaels

She said I don't think I'm gonna let you walk on me anymore
I don't think I'm gonna let you let me care if you slam the door
You made me so confused even when I win I lose
But here comes that feeling creeping in Hello, goodbye, she wants to stay, she wants to fly
This room, this bed, too many thoughts run through her head
Of where she's going and where's she's been
Fade to black, start again She said I don't think I'm gonna let you put me down anymore
I don't think I'm gonna even let you know
About that hole you left in my heart
It's hard to say I'm sorry when you're the one who caused this heartache
Well, here comes that feeling once again Hello, goodbye, she wants to stay, she wants to fly
This room, this bed, too many thoughts run through her head
Of where she's going and where's she's been
Fade to black, start again All of her friends say why don't you let him go
They all talking but what do they know
Yeah, what do they know She says I've done my forgiving
I'm letting go of the scars I've hidden
But here comes that feeling creeping in Hello, goodbye, she wants to stay, she wants to fly
This room, this bed, too many thoughts run through her head
Forgive, forget, didn't seem to get here nowhere yet
Walk away or stay with him
Fade to black, start again
Fade to black, start again
