

Heroes

The Glass Child

Winter, climbing out the window years ago Omens telling me to follow the unknown Fire. Burning up inside, history untold Hiding, what happens if they find it?
I don't know I'm growing older, following this road, feel the earth below
Family and closest, they understand so they're screaming no
But I am wiser, I'm learning how to love and then let it go Purpose, all I ever loved I have loved alone I'm following the heroes learning how to stand up on my own Late at night I hear them
telling me to walk on on my own
I will walk alone I'm growing older, following this road, feel the earth below
Family and closest, they understand so they're screaming no
But I am wiser, I'm learning how to love and then let it go Destiny and purpose, all I ever loved I have loved alone I'm following the heroes
learning how to stand up on my own
Late at night I hear them
telling me to walk on on my own
I will walk alone You will never see me deceived in the night find my way back up on my feet, off the ground
As long as I am moving I'm right on the path I made Together we will march like a tribe in the night
Following the moonlight, the stars as our signs Free from all attachments, reborn as the morning dawns.
'Cause I'm right where I belong I'm following the heroes
learning how to stand up on my own
Late at night I hear them
telling me to walk on on my own
I will walk alone
