Sit Down by the Fire

The Veils

Born from the night in the roaring wind
Cast out of the shadows by an unknown hand
Warmed by the light of these falling limbs
Drunk on the sadness of a universe unmannedAcross the water she clings to me
And in the rising karma I feel her at my side
My father's singing in the fallin' leaves
About the complicated beauty of a river run drySit down by the fire
Sit down by the fireIt's hard to say
But I think you'd better
Just Say you don't love me
You don't love me anymoreI been waiting in line
Now I know I'll never
Overcome this madness
If I don't know for sureAcross the water she clings to me
And in the light of dawn
I see her at my sideAnd my father's singing in the fallin' leaves
There's no way out of this old world even if you trySo just sit down by the fire
Sit down by the fire
There ain't no way to get what I wantSit down by the fire
Oh, sit down by the fire
There ain't no way to get what I wantSome day
A little rain is bound to fall
Some day
A little rain is bound to fallSome day
A little rain is bound to fall
Some dayOver my head my heart and my feet
I'm drawn insane
You know I need you now
Over my head my heart and my feet
I'm drawn insaneSit down by the fire love
Sit down by the fire
There ain't no way to get what I wantSit down by the fire love
Sit down by the fire
There ain't no way to get what I want
Oh, there ain't no way to get what I want
