Angel in Disguise

Corrinne May

I woke up this morning feeling kind of blue and I stumbled out of bed and dragged my feet across the room Right outside my front door was a rose and a note that said 'Somebody Loves You'But out on the street it starts to pour and before I get soaking wet, A total stranger runs to give me the jacket off his back I turn around to thank him
But he waves me with a smile
I can hardly believe my eyes
He puts on a halo and starts to flyTake a look at the ordinary Don't need to look at Paradise
You could be next to an angel in disguiseI met a good friend for lunch and we had a delicious meal
But I forgot to bring my wallet
I felt like an imbecile
But she was sweet, she gave me a treat and Bought me a chicken sandwich
To take home for teaBut out on the street with nothing to eat
A man and his shopping cart go Travelling to places,
Collecting social graces
I give him my sandwich and we chatter for a while I see a rainbow wash over his eyes He gives me his halo and I start to flyTake a look at the ordinary Don't need to look for Paradise
You could be next to an angel in disguiseDon't try to hide away from me
I know you're by my sideTake a look at the ordinary
Don't need to look for Paradise
You could be next to an angel in disguise Everyday can be legendary Every minute, an endless surprise
You could be the next angel in disguiseI woke up this morning Feeling kind of new
