

Hopeless

Dylan Holland

What's going on, baby tell me it's 3:30 in the morning and my mind won't let me sleep it's been raining for days and I've been thinking the color grey seems to suit my soul since the day you said you were leaving and I know that it's my fault too 'cause I'm the one who let you go but we're a hopeless mess there's a pain in my chest so I think it's time I let you know if I told you that I loved you would it cross the line if I threw my arms up dropped to my knees and cried would you still think of me as just another guy or would you take my hand and run off into the night I would come and pick you up but I'm afraid to drive because right now it's dark and my mind's in the sky I'm not telling you that we'd be perfect but give it a chance and maybe it'd be worth it my dreams are what you are made of that's why I'm hopelessly in love with you, with you the clock on the wall is barely ticking oh no it's been off by an hour just like my heartbeat when you are missing you see I'd walk around the world just to take you by your hand 'cause these days are getting longer, that's why it gets harder to stand and we can play the blame game all day but we both know it's me so instead of a letter I thought that it'd be better in a love song to beg and plead
if I told you that I loved you would it cross the line
if I threw my arms up dropped to my knees and cried
would you still think of me as just another guy or would you take my hand and run off into the night I would come and pick you up but I'm afraid to drive
because right now it's dark and my mind's in the sky
I'm not telling you that we'd be perfect
but give it a chance and maybe it'd be worth it
my dreams are what you are made of
that's why I'm hopelessly in love
yeah hopeless, hopelessly in love with you
with you

Lyrics provided by <https://damnlyrics.com/>