

Divisions

Audiostrobelight

Take a look,
Yeah, one good look, and tell me;
What do you see inside the picture your mind took?
To people with a shot at everything
That's what they would say when they would look up at you and me
We've been up, yeah why up high
We were the best of friends we had the best of nights
But lately I been feeling there's a little something holding us back
What happened to the old days?
When I knew everything you were about to say?
That every mistake you were born to make all were ready on the next page
And we might have had a good thing, but, I guess in the end, it was never enough
Bad desicions bring, good Divisions
"Show me, I'm banking on something real Cause baby if it doesn't start to feel like it soon, I'm fuckin' out of here" She said.
And it might make for a better story if I told you that I couldn't shake you
But even the worst times are starting to fade to, the pages in my mind that are starting to wear through
But I guess here's another song, about someone not worth it all
But lately I been feeling there's a little something holding us back
What happened to the old days?
When I knew everything you were about to say?
That every mistake you were born to make all were ready on the next page
And we might wear that good thing, but, I guess in the end, it was never enough
Good desicions bring, good Divisions
She doesn't want the "Boy" in Boyfriend,
Just the "Man" in Romance
Oh, I start to thing that I'll never grow up and,
Missed another chance
But lately I been feeling there's a little something holding us back
What happened to the old days?
When I knew everything you were about to say?
That every mistake you were born to make...
So these are the new days
When I could care less about all that you have to say
And all the mistakes you're about to make
We were never on the same page
And we might have had a good thing, but, I guess in the end, it was never love
Good descisions brought, good divisions
