

Madi's Song (The Man She Thinks I Am)

George Canyon

My baby girl just turned five,
Got her mama's smarts,
And her daddy's eyes,
She thinks I'm 10 feet tall,
King of the world and that's not all. When I'm acting like a fool,
That's when she thinks my jokes are cool,
When she's riding on my back,
I'm superman and that's a fact. I'm just an ordinary guy,
I can't stop bullets and I can't fly,
But I can be the one, who dries her eyes,
And makes her smile, when she cries,
I may never be the man she thinks I am,
But I'm gonna be the best one that I can. She's never seen my name in lights,
But her eyes light up when I get home at night,
She takes her pony for a ride,
And still wants her daddy by her side. I make her boo-boos go bye-bye,
Sing her to sleep with a lullaby,
I'm just a joyous phenomenon,
'Cause sooner or later she's gonna catch on. I'm just an ordinary guy,
I can't stop bullets and I can't fly,
But I can be the one, who dries her eyes,
And makes her smile, when she cries,
I may never be the man she thinks I am,
But I'm gonna be the best one that I can. Someday her heart will find another man,
Who'll take my place,
Just the way god planned,
Then she'll understand. I'm just an ordinary guy,
I can't stop bullets and I can't fly,
For now I'll be the one, who dries her eyes,
And makes her smile, when she cries,
I may never be the man she thinks I am,
But I'm gonna be the best dad that I can.

Songwriters

GEORGE CANYON, PATRICK ALGER
Published by Lyrics © MAJOR BOB MUSIC, INC.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnyrics.com/>