Sometimes

Candlebox

And I wipe the night from my eyes
And block out that sunny day and I hide
And everything's falling down around us
I'm just missing the rain, yeahAnd I'm happier now, today
And don't let me down

And don't let me dowr

Change of seasons, inside her mind

In time I'll decide

In time I'll decide to move on Change directions, watch the tides

And we borrow too much

We form restrictions, we form lines

And we separate you from meBut sometimes

Sometimes we carry more weight than we own

Oh, sometimes

And sometimes goes on And night takes the light by the hand

And tunes out that boring day and cries out loud

And everyone's hangin' on, hangin' on my words

Kills the thrill in being divineShe's happier now, today

And don't let her down

Don't let her go

Found no reasons to find no lies

We just bleed together

That's how we realize that weChange directions, watch the tides

And we borrow too much

We form restrictions, we form lines

And we separate you from meBut sometimes

And sometimes we carry more weight than we own

Oh, but sometimes

And sometimes goes on and on and on and on and on

Oh, but sometimesAnd somehow we'll find a way

We'll paste it back together

These ripped out pages of old coloring books were young

Gold is silver, my blue is gray

It's all held together by cellophane tape, but weChange directions, we'd watch the tides

And we borrow too much

We form restrictions, we form lines

And we separate you from meBut sometimes

And sometimes we carry more weight than we own

Oh, but sometimes

And sometimes goes on and on and on, ohIn my head, I've got everything I want
And in my head I've got everything I want
And in my head I've got everything I want
And in my head I've got everything I want
And yeah
