Narrow

Palantine

I must admit this hasn't taken me by surprise
When I see my friend get sucked into all of this world's lies
It was only a little decision, after all he didn't have time
And it lead him to a promotion, but left his first love behindHe said, 'I'm looking for a better way to pay off my first home
And I'm looking for the day I get an office of my own'Well I must admit this world often tempts my fallen eyes
And I fall in love with all my earthly home provides
But I make this vowing decision, to get lost in divine romance
And at times I forsake my first love, but He woes my heart again'Cause He's the God of second chanceAnd I'm looking for the narrow way back to where I belong
And I'm looking for the narrow way that leads me to my homeThis world is closing in, so I'm going to reach for Him before I fall behind
This world is closing in, so I'm going to reach for Him before I fall behind
This world is closing in, so I'm going to reach for Him before I fall behind
This world is closing in, so I'm going to reach for Him before I fall behind'Cause I'm looking for the narrow way back to where I belong
And I'm looking for the narrow way that leads me to my homeAnd I'm looking for,
The narrow way
The narrow wayI must admit this hasn't taken me by surprise

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/