Forget the Song

Beachwood Sparks

"Forget The Song" song overview: It's been 10 years since we last heard from LA's Beachwood Sparks country rock band. This new song is called "Forget The Song" and it's a great song that meets the band fans expectations. As the chorus swoops in, hoping "the spring melts the winter in my heart" you'll warm right up too.

Forget The Song lyrics
It's time to stop pretending
Those days, those days are gone
It's time to stop wishing for endings
Those old wounds have turned into scars
Forget the song that I've been singing
Lay down the way that I've been holding
Hope that spring melts the winter in my heart
Flower, returning in their blooming
Time comes, washes away
Some nights, ...the darkest nights
... is waiting for me
Forget the song that I've been singing
Lay down the way that I've been holding

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/