

Heart Turns to Stone

Foreigner

The days and the nights, I sit around and wondering where can she be?
I'm hoping that she will appear out of nowhere, but you fail to see
All the hurt inside, the wounded pride
Ooh what she went through for you
You cheated and lied as her love slowly died
And the heart just broke in two When she was with you, all along
Behind you right or wrong
She tried to hold on, hold on
But you went too far and she's gone Now it's over and her heart turns to stone
No time for pity, when her heart turns to stone
She cries a little, as her heart turns to stone
She's that kind of woman, she'll do fine on her own When she thought was a game
A game you were winning, wouldn't go your way
Now you've lost what you had and your back to beginning
It's the price you have to pay When she was with you, all along
Behind you right or wrong
She tried to hold on, hold on
But you went too far and she's gone Now it's over and her heart turns to stone
No time for pity, when her heart turns to stone
She cries a little, as her heart turns to stone
She's that kind of woman, she'll get by on her own She hides the pain, but her heart turns to stone
No time for pity, when her heart turns to stone
She cries sometimes, as her heart turns to stone
She's that kind of woman, she'll get by on her own Yeah it's over and her heart turns to stone
Don't look for pity now, when her heart turns to stone
Listen to her cry, listen to her cry
She's a woman now, ooh it's a sad thing to see
To see a heart turn to stone, the heart of the woman
A heart turned to stone
