

The Fire

Rag'n'Bone Man

I had a dream, to wash myself
Of this great affliction
So hard to say, I get uptight
Speak without convictionAll the weight of my worries
And the fear that surrounds me
Depends on you too
How can I stand here as a man
Place all the blame into your hands
Leave it with you?I've been lost
Lost in the fire of love
I've been lost
Lost, lost in the fire of loveYou felt the heat of the sunshine
Before I met you
Now reach the side
Pour your heart out
And left you in the shadowAll the weight of my worries
And the fear that surrounds me
Depends on you tooI've been lost
Lost in the fire of love
I've been lost
Lost, lost in the fire of loveFrom the days I couldn't face you sober
To the times that I would raise when you would tip me over
We was always on the edge of never-ending
But hands kept on clenching
This lifestyle's descending
Why you pretending I was pulling down the bricks?
I was young and you were sick
'Cause at the time I drained the life
From everything that ever lived
Man of sin, the devil in me
Fire straight out from the pit
But I don't blame myself now
I see youI've been lost
Lost in the fire of love
I've been lost
Lost, lost in the fire of loveAll that's wrong with me
Is wrong with you
