I Am

Savatage

I see a little man sitting and he's wondering
If over his little plot he might be king
He finds his present world a little boringThere's no land that is so small that it cannot divide
So come, I'll draw the line and you just pick your side
Ignoring anyone who gives a warningFor I am the answer you seek, the dream in your sleep
You never wanted to awaken
I have the plan that won't fail, a crime without trail
And all I really need right now is youI see a little man, thinking that he might need more
And so his eyes are drifting to the house next door
He wonders if his neighbors might be leavingSo he makes a little offer that they'll understand
There is no point in letting things get out of hand
For no one wants to see their widows grievingFor I am the answer you seek, the dream in your sleep
You never wanted to awaken
I have the plan that won't fail, a crime without trail
And all I really need is youI am the word without deeds, the lie that exceeds
For lies are always most impatient
I am the guide for the lost, who never counts cost
And all I really need right now is youAll I really need right now is you
All I really need right now is youAll I really need right now is you
(I see a little man sitting and he's wondering)
All I really need right now is you
(I see a little man sitting and he's wondering)All I really need right now is you
(I see a little man sitting and he's wondering)
All I really need right now is you
(I see a little man sitting and he's wondering)All I really need right now is you
(I see a little man sitting and he's wondering)
All I really need right now is you
(I see a little man sitting and he's wondering)All I really need right now is you
You, you, you, you, you
