

Foul Play

Robert Cray

It's Wednesday night, my woman's out
Once again I'm home alone
Lately, every Wednesday night
She's late getting home She phones from work at quittin' time
Says the boss asked her to stay
She said she's makin' double time
But I suspect foul play, I suspect foul play This makes five straight Wednesday nights
And that's no coincidence
Sitting here and thinking back
It all starts making sense Her old boss quit two months ago
She came home all smiles that day
Said they hired a younger man
But I suspect foul play, said I suspect foul play
Oh, I suspect foul play Something in her voice
Alerted my suspicious heart
I've heard that warning sign before
Just before love fell apart This is my last Wednesday night
Waitin' like a fool
I won't stand for another man
No, no, no, that's my hard-fast rule She'd better have some kind of evidence
Of all this extra pay
She'd better have some cold, hard facts
'Cause I suspect foul play, said I suspect foul play
Oh, I suspect foul play Yeah, yeah, foul play
Something's going on wrong
Foul play, yeah
