

Broken Dreams

Authority Zero

Your [Incomprehensible] but does that mean you don't try?
Does everything just fall apart and leave you wondering why?
Not questioning what's right in front of your eyes
A chance to make your choice, the choice to change your life
You say that it won't be alright
That everything is a waste
I can't believe my eyes
So tell me what's left
When everything you've cared for carries on
And broken dreams are built to make you strong
When the memories of yesterday fall through
These broken dreams are built to help you?
If I could change the past I never would
Some call them mistakes I call them a lesson learned
Like the thorn that's sticking in my side
Questioning your reason to try to change my life
You say that it won't be alright
That everything is a waste
I can't believe my eyes
So tell me what's left
When everything you've cared for carries on
And broken dreams are built to make you strong
When the memories of yesterday fall through
These broken dreams are built to help you through?
When the memories of yesterday fall through
These broken dreams are built to help you
And when the memories of yesterday fall through
These broken dreams are built to help you
Tell me what's left
When everything you've cared for carries on
And broken dreams are built to make you strong
When the memories of yesterday fall through
These broken dreams are built to help you, through?
When everything you've cared for carries on
And broken dreams are built to make you strong
And when the memories of yesterday fall through
These broken dreams are built to help you
Tell me what's left
