As Performed by Josh Hoke, "Ghosts and Glory"

Music and Lyrics by Josh Hoke

(c)2013 BentBent Productions (ASCAP) Staring back across the table

There's a thrill that's in your eyes

Well, sometimes God gives me an answer

But often leaves it a surprise It feels like home

Home Looking out over the city

A million lights lit flickering

Like everyone's asleep already

But they left'em on for you and me It feels like home

Home

It feels like home

Home

This last year it nearly killed me

I've known listlessness too well

But you come and wrap around my lonely

Whisper a story I couldn't tell Dry your eyes, it's gonna be alright

Dry your eyes, it's gonna be Home, Home

It feel like Home Home
