

First Love

Kirk Franklin

I just wanna talk to somebody right now
Who's been gone away for a long time
You don't have to run no more
You can come back home I know they hurt you
They saw you stumble but didn't help you
And now they left you
They were quick to pray but slow to move And now you're empty
Too tired to run, you walk away
In the night there's a voice
If you listen, He sweetly says Come back to your first love, first love
Come back to your first love, first love
Come back home, back where you belong
Come back to your, to your
First love, first love, first love
First love, first love, first love And after years together you didn't make it
You thought your love would last forever
Ain't it funny how a chapter can make a story change? Cold and lonely, you never knew hurt could feel this way
But listen, understand there's a plan if you're patient
Hear the Savior say Come back to your first love, first love
Come back to your first love, first love
Come back home, back where you belong
Come back to your, to your
First love, first love, first love, first love
First love, first love, first love God is able to heal if you listen
And He'll show you His will if you listen
But you gotta be still and just listen, listen God is able to heal if you listen
And He'll show you His will if you listen
But you gotta be still and just listen, listen Come back to your first love, first love
Come back to your first love, first love
Come back to your first love, first love
Come back to your first love, first love And finally
I'm back with my first love, first love
I'm back with my first love, first love
I'm back home, back where I belong I'm back with my, with my first love
First love, first love, first love
First love, first love, first love Home, home, home,
I'm home, home, home
I'm home, home

Lyrics provided by
<https://damnlyrics.com/>