Summer Again

Micah Brown

Im watching the green give into gold
As summer becomes Octobers cold
Gravity begs for one final kiss
She drops it to him as she gives inTraces of light linger around
As laces of white fall to the ground
The softest of sounds for the heaviest things
The pain that it bringsAs she falls I try to catch her
For one last touch of warmth from summer
As one thing leaves to become another again
I remember whenDont remember the day she started to fade
The ground felt a chill as she gave it away
A whisper, a sigh for the time that she passed
But the winter wont lastAs she falls I try to catch her
For one last touch of warmth from summer
As one thing leaves to become another again
I remember when, oh, to be with summer againThe days were warm, we wore them like skin
Now I feel the effects of October againAs she falls I try to catch her
For one last touch of warmth from summer
As one thing leaves to become another again
I remember when, oh, to be with summer again
Oh, to be with summer againI'm watching the green give in to gold
As summer becomes Octobers cold
