Babyshambles

Ohh, ohh, ohh

Why would you pay to see me in a cage?

And why would you pay to see me in a cage?

Some men call the stageListen now I have gone you will know

I was the only one that would have gladly died

What was wrong in the eyes of the unwell and unwiseThey killed a man for his giro today

Wasn't very game, I didn't mind

I wasn't a money man anyway

They killed a man for his giro todayWhy, would you pay

Why, would you pay

To see me in the cage

Just a hole across the stageAnd know when the night has gone

You might say I was not the only the one that would've died

What was wrong in the eyes of the cruel and unwise

And they killed a man for his giro todayOn the off chance that you're listening to the radio

I thought you might like to know you broke my heart

You can only start to know or hedge your bets

And take a chance you never get againAll my ties, time and time

I keep on trying hard not to try too hard

When I forgive, I won't forget

To killing time, so I'm better nowI don't need it anymore

Anything that makes you, feel hate

Can do without hate

Now I believe in loveNow I have gone oh yeah, I will pay

For everything you've done

What was wrong in the eyes of the unwell and unwise

They killed a man for his giro today, ohh, ohh, ohh
