

Maybe You're a Heart

Dick Prall

Maybe you're a heart
Underneath my skin
Pushing all those blood cells
That I've thinned
Maybe you're the smoke
Rising from my chair
Blowing back
And tangled in my hair

I will write these down
Until you come around
And I will ask you then
If maybe you're a heart

Maybe you're what creaks
That I hear late at night
Lying back
And reaching for the light
Are you in that phrase
In every simple song
Forcing me
To always sing along
