Kevin's Song

Squad Five-O

Kevin my brother I remember when you said goodbye and walked away.You always said to live is Christ to die is to gain.Despite all my pain.I know you gave it all when you made the final journey home.You weren't alone.And I remember cryin' the I heard you died and.The way I felt can't be described except as painful joy inside me.Now months have passed, and seasons changed.But memories still remain.I look around and at the lives you've touched.And the difference your life made through God's extended grace.And there was a smile on His face.The day that you left this place.Welcome home.And what you lived for is what you died for.
