

Scratch

Kendall Payne

It's a big girl world now
Full of big girl things
And everyday I wish I was small 'Cos I've been counting on nothing
But he keeps giving me his word
And I am tired of hearing myself speak
Do you ever get weary? Do you ever get weak?
How do you dream when you can't fall asleep? I've been wondering what you're thinking
And if you liked my dress tonight?
Would you still say you love me
Under this ordinary moonlight?
I'm so afraid of what you'll say I'd like to know if you'd be open
To starting over from scratch
I'd like to know if you'd be open
To giving me a second chance I used to think I was special
And only I have proved me wrong
I thought I could change the world with a song But I have ended up in India
With no map to guide me home
The strangest place I think I have ever been
And all this time I thought that we were friends
My stubborn will is learning to bend I'd like to know if you'd be open
To starting over from scratch
I'd like to know if you'd be open
To giving me a second chance I'd like to know if you'd be open
To starting over from scratch
I'd like to know if you'd be open
To giving me a second chance It's a big girl world now
Full of big girl things
And everyday I wish I was small
