Isolation

Hundredth

Becoming who I despiseThe naked truth leaves me bare
A tipping point between order and chaos
Gave way to despair every thought that
Sides with scornConstantly stranding myself
I push them away
I hold my tongue and say
"No one understands me"
I justified my position with
"We're all alone in the end"
I blur the line between who loves me and needs me
Separate myself to gain control of everything
And redefine, but I lost in the isolationEmpathy, a foreign word to me
Had no desire to speak
Had no desire to set free
Fear let ency steal my virtue
Pain blinded my escape
I chose to side with my enemy
The part of me that I hate
Fear pain envy hate
I'll see you on the other sideI blur the line between who loves me and needs me
Separate myself to gain control of everything
And redefine, but I lost in the isolation
