The Peaks (feat. Kimberly Anne)

Lewis Watson

So they came, one by one, there was never any warning.
Blood out the stuck thick fields like it was gonna last long.
I'm not sold the whole rise, I saw the whole thing from down an old flash spring.
A lot to saw it reaching out.
And I'm left holding my head looking down at every grave.
And don't let millennia pass just to figure it away.
And I've seen more villages burn than animals born.
I've seen more towers come down and children grow old.Cross the peaks, cross the marsh, cross your fingers for the last time.
Pass out the blame to someone, never step an upside.
Nobody's asking,"why is your head bent down?"
So there's trillions lost, I'm dreaming of a different time.And I'm left holding my head looking down at every grave.
And don't let millennia pass just to figure it away.
And I've seen more villages burn than animals born.
I've seen more towers come down and children grow old.And I'm left holding my head looking down at every grave.
And don't let millennia pass just to figure it away.
And I've seen more villages burn than animals born.
I've seen more towers come down and children grow old.

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/