Finally Home

Britt Warren

I am here alone in the falling snow
And the wind, it cools my tears
I have been so wrong, I have turned away
But the road was long and finally I have come to my knees
I want to be
Where I can walk, where I can run
Where my heart sings and I feel the sun
Where I can trust and I'm strong enough
Free like the wind, I'll run into my Father's arms
I'm finally home
Oh the winds of change, they blow slow and cool
Oh the wanderings of a fool
But I have laid it down in my Father's hands
Where the weight of suffering is carried by the arms of a cross
Healing my loss
Where I can walk, where I can run

Where my heart sings and I feel the sun
Where I can trust and I'm strong enough
Free like the wind, I'll run into my Father's arms
Heaven has reached into my lonely soul
Loving so deep, and so complete 'til I don't feel alone
Where the light of love is burning, where the past is washed away
Where I feel the sunlight shining on my face
Now I can walk, now I can run
Now my heart sings and I feel the sun
Now I can trust and I'm strong enough
Free like the wind, I'll run into my Father's arms
I'm finally home
Now I can trust and I'm strong enough
Free like the wind I run into my Father's arms
I'm finally home

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/