

Sunshower

Glen Campbell & Jimmy Webb

When the summer lies like a lazy dog
And the dust is blowing like a fine feathered fog
And the hog is sleeping like a log
And the welcome wind like a long lost friend bring the clouds along. And the thunder sits in the rumble seat
And the mist comes drifting on your hard swollen feet
And the heat and haze and thunder meet
And the rain comes down in a silver gown and simply stands around When the light and the water share the same sky
In the same hour
Hallelujah
It's a sunshower
Hallelujah
It's a sunshower Such is love my friend in the early days
When your hopes are rising through a hole in the haze
In a daze but theres a second phase
And a second fall when you find you're caught in a moving maze And the sadness comes without your consent
And you find yourself explaining all the things that you meant
You'll repent and try to pay the rent
But the tears will fall, walking down the hall on eviction day When regret and relief share the same sign in the same hour
Hallelujah
Love's a sunshower
Hallelujah it's a sunshower
