Somehow

Tom Odell

I don't speak the language that you speak and there's some words I know I'll never reach but when I see you smiling back at meSomehow, somehow I know exactly what you mean somehow, somehow
I know exactly what you mean, oohhWhen you look, when you look a little hurt sometimes I sing a song that I have learned I swear to god there's no way you could've hurtBut somehow, somehow you sing every single word but somehow, somehow you sing every single word, oohhSometimes I go running in the dark when I don't know how to read the stars but where I'll run, it don't matter how farBut somehow, somehow I always end up in your arms
But somehow, somehow
I always end up in your arms, ooooohhSomehow, somehowSomehow, somehowNo I don't know what happens when you die and just the thought, you know it kinda blows my mind but when I look, when I look up to the skySomehow, somehow I know that it will be alright
somehow, somehow
I know that you will be beside, ooohh
