

Father to Son

Bathory

Father to son, father to son
Father to son, from father to son Now born, my son, I name thee
After the sound of my hammer's
Beat upon the anvil
On this chilly springtime day The hammer child of my flesh
Of my blood to carry on
When I have reached Oden's end
Of my glorious warrior's trail From father to son
From father to son Call upon the spirits of our fathers
Long time gone with thunder
Ask them for truth and courage
When trouble's in your way Learn to read and understand
The signs to few can clearly vision
Listen carefully to what
The ravens has to say Oh, the thunder's roar
Greetings from our fathers long time gone
Tell so that no one ever will forget
What's in heart goes from father to son From father to son
From father to son Oh, watch the lightning strike
Feel the powers of the hammer's pounding on
Take it to your heart and understand
What must live on from father to son From father to son
From father to Promise me, my son, to always Cherish what is home to you
You will live in truth and to Defend all of your race Never lose the values
I have taught to you
Always keep your moral and ideals
Do never bring your flag disgrace From father to son
From father to son Promise me, my son
Before my corpse is turning pale
To grab my sword, hold it to the sky
And call out my hail Listen for the sound of bronze horns
Watch the lightning strike then
You know I have reached Oden's end
Of my warrior's trail Oh, my child, please take heed
Through you I am granted to live on These words more worth than you'll ever know
Make them live on from father to son From father to son

From father to sonFrom father to son
From father to son
