All Your Days

Juliette Commagere

I close my eyes...
I fall back down through the scenery
And I shutter twice like a hollow tree
And the city fades like a candle bright
And my mirrors gaze in a dusty light
And the wind, it blows; it is hot and dry
In my ears and nose like a desert night
I keep looking back, I keep looking backAll your days
All your days
All your days are moving on
All your days
All your days
All your days are gone for good
All your days
All your days
All your days are moving on
All your days
All your days
All your days are gone for goodI haven't asked you yet
All that I've tried to give
And tried to get
We'll never mendThief's comes by...
You were there from the start, I know
But the time is right with an orchid fly
What's switched in my sight's like a silky kite
We'll take up the slack, I will let it go
We can climb up high, watch the beach below
I remember when I remembered nights
It was something there I could not describeAll your days
All your days
All your days are moving on
All your days
All your days
All your days are gone for good
All your days
All your days
All your days are moving on
All your days
All your days

All your days are gone for goodI haven't asked you yet
All that I've tried to give
And tried to get
We'll never mend
