

Patiently Waiting

Minus the Bear

She woke up on a train
A train moving through a mountain range
And she's still silently watching trees
Falling east, she's thinking
Home is just a hang up
When nothing's easyLast night, hotel bar
You lost track of time
Emptying glasses
Then you turned your head
As he walked through the door
He found your gaze but you made him yours
Did you know you could take a man so easily
For what it's worthMove, baby, move
Your life is falling on youMorning came and saw you alone
He had turned into a note
Thanks girl, next time in my town
Just pick up the phone
It found the floor
You found you weren't at home
It was a note
Just like any other guy
Or someone, somewhereMove, baby, move
Your life is falling on youGo back to sleep for a little longer
You got the best of me
Your clothes have been patiently waiting
Go put them back on
It wasn't so longMove, baby, move
Your life is falling on you
