You Should Know Better

Andy Grammer

I'm on the phone, you turn your back on me
And we're all alone, why is this happening?
I, I never thought I would be questioning
The one I, one I love
But here we are wrapped up in silence
Can we sound the alarm?
Most of its fighting
I don't know where to start
I keep colliding with
The one I, one I love
Don't make it so hard for me to stay
You should know better than that
And before you go on breaking my heart
And I fall even deeper in love
And my lungs screaming out
"Can you hear me?!"
You should know better than that
And here we are, here we are, ohhh
If I could leave, I would be leaving
Because I cannot believe what I am hearing
Tell me how can it be I'm second guessing on
The one I, one I love
Don't make it so hard for me to stay
You should know better than that

And before you go on breaking my heart
And I fall even deeper in love
And my lungs screaming out
"Can you hear me?!"
You should know better than that
And here we are, here we are, ohhh
Here we are, here we are again
Some forgive just to forget
I've not forgotten yet
I still believe in you
But there's a crack in our cement
This time it's permanent, permanent
You should know
You should know better than that

And before you go on breaking my heart
And I fall even deeper in love
And my lungs screaming out
"Can you hear me?!"
You should know better than that
And here we are, here we are, ohhh
Here we are, here we are again
You should know better than that
And here we are, here we are, ohhh
Here we are, here we are again
You should know better than that
