

Exit the Game

Iron Reagan

All day long you sit and play
Hoping to block out reality
In that world you are the king
But the truth is more disgusting Every hour that passes is fixed
On hoping you can get through level six
The world's hard to endure
So you hide behind closed doors Exit the game!
The screen's glow is your only friend
This real life you can't comprehend
A sad case, a common condition
As you sit in your own-made prison
Eye fixed into a permanent gaze
Trapped in your pity-inflicted maze
Exit the game!
