It Was

Chely Wright

I guess we guess our way through life
How many times do we really know for sure?
I was just hoping for the best
Then I woke up in those lovin' arms of yoursWhat I felt was unmistakable
When I fell for youIt was real, it was magic, it was calm, it was savage
It was cool as a breeze, it was warm to the touch
It was never enough, it was always too much
It did all the things love does, that's how I knew it wasWho thought that I could laugh so loud
Then turn around and cry so many tears?
I used to have so many doubts
But one by one you made them disappearAnd what I found was unbelievable
But I believe it's trueIt was real, it was magic, it was calm, it was savage
It was cool as a breeze, it was warm to the touch
It was never enough, it was always too much
It did all the things love does and that's how I knew it wasYou asked what I felt
When you walked through the door
Was it fear? Was it clear?
It was all that and moreIt was real, it was magic, it was calm, it was savage
It was cool as a breeze, it was warm to the touch
It was never enough, it was always too much
It did all the things love does and that's how I knew it was
That's how I knew it was, it was, it was
