Maybe

Dana Glover

Here I go climbing a mountain
It's much too high for me
And here I go crossing the ocean
Losing myself, getting lost in the sea
Where did I go wrong
When did I stop singing a love song
Maybe I was wrong
Maybe I was blind and could not see
Maybe you were never the one
Maybe you were not the one for me
Maybe
Here I go posing a question
Not sure of what I'll hear
Here I go refusing to let you answer
Until I make myself so very clear

We can take what was wrong
We can end these words in a love song
Maybe if we try
Maybe we can start again when we've already said good-bye
Maybe we can still be what we always dreamed that we could be
And I know that I was wrong to let you go
But I'm still holding on to let you know
Maybe I was wrong
Maybe I was blind and could not see
Oh but baby I'll be strong
And I'll sacrifice the very breath I breathe
If I could only hear you say to me
When I ask you if you think you still love me
Maybe
