

Keeping the Undesirables out

Emma Forman

They put up signs to keep the undesirables out

If you tick these boxes they won't let you in

Your money is not good enough so go somewhere else

Your money is not good enoughIn this day and age they must know what they do is wrong

But nothing ever changes cos no one says anything

Nobody says take those signs down you are breaking the law take those signs downI wait for the day when they take the signs down

Yeah I'll wait for the day they admit that they were wrong

Oh I wait for the day when they take the signs down

Yeah I'll wait for the day they admit that they were wrongWho gets to decide what's a normal family

And Who gets to decide what will become of me

It doesn't seem right to me

People judge me like a bookA book with a dirty cover might be embroidered by words of such beauty that they would change your life

but If you never look the past the cover you'll never see insideI'll wait for the day when they take the signs down

Yeah I'll wait for the day they admit that they were wrong

Oh I wait for the day when they take the signs down

I wait for the day when they admit that they were wrong

Oh I'll wait for the day when they admit that they were wrong

Yeah I'll wait for the day when they admit that they were wrong
