Chase Johanson

I have a wave of red that flows itself inside of me
Keeps out the anger of the things that I could never be Absorbs the love the hate the things you told me to be true
Then burns a memory of the very soul that I once knewOohhI took a rocket to a planet where nobody is
The spirits greeted me and left me to my selfishness
I stayed a day or two and came back into gravity
It doesn't keep me down it only keeps me companyInside a diamond where the carbon hides
I store the memories of a broken mind
And some day when I stare deep into the eyes
I'll know exactly where my freedom liesDeep in an ocean atop a hill, the fish don't swim and the chimneys spill
A deep black smoke that falls on the floor
A place that no mans gone before
But I have
In my dreams
That's the place that no man could ever reach
Sleep well
Don't wake
BelieveI keep a storybook of all the places that I've been
It's filled with animals and all the colours of our skin
I write my songs to pay the memories dues that they deserve
My thoughts go up in flames but people they just watch them burnBut they don't knowInside a diamond where the carbon hides
I store the memories of a broken mind
And some day when I stare deep into the eyes
I'll know exactly where my freedom liesDeep in an ocean atop a hill, the fish don't swim and the chimneys spill
A deep black smoke that falls on the floor
A place that no mans gone before
But I have
In my dreams
That's the place that no man could ever reach
Sleep well
Don't wake
