Break The Chain

Oh Land

Cold hands surrounds me, I feel the walls around me closing in
And my chest is getting tighter
Cold winds are blowing away, were you left hanging in the air
And your words are getting louder
He said, "Sorry but you're never gonna dance again"
But my feet just keeps me moving, trying to break the chain
And I feel like running, and I feel no pain
I feel like running when I'm lost within my frame
Sharp tongues cut the air and melt into rain when it falls on my hair
Is it 'cause I'm getting wiser?
Far from the steep slope I feel the herd come running over me

And I feel a little lighter
He said, "Sorry but you're never gonna dance again"
But my feet just keeps me moving, trying to break the chain
And I feel like running, and I feel no pain
I feel like running when I'm lost within my frame
He said, "Sorry but you're never gonna dance again"
But my feet just keeps me moving, trying to break the chain
And I feel like running, and I feel no pain
I feel like running when I'm lost within my frame
