The Painful Truth

The Stephan Michael Band

I walk alone in the sunset showing on my back, dreams never come true till you turn white to black, friends and not friends in the fields of deception, you'll let things be only when your taught a lesson

We all fight with our fears and desires and the painful truth that can never be learned, we search for love and we seek understanding, we look for truth but we all just get burned

When you sit in the darkness and cry in your heart, do you think the world gives a damn, you have to fight hard, your like a number a didget called upon at will, some people spend their lifetimes chasing down all the thrills

Life is like a story a mystery till the last page, every part of all our lives is centered around age, the younger you are the more pressure they put upon you and the older you get the more they try to abuse you
