

Blank Page

Smashing Pumpkins

Blank page is all the rage
Never meant to say anything
In bed I was half dead
Tired of dreaming of restGot dressed drove the state line
Looking for you at the Five And Dime
Stop sign told me stay at home
Told me you were not aloneBlank page was all the rage
Never meant to hurt anyone
In bed I was half dead
Tired of dreaming of restYou haven't changed
You're still the same
May you rise as you fallYou were easy, you are forgotten
You are the ways of my mistakesI catch the rainfall
Through the leaking roof
That you had left behindYou remind me
Of that leak in my soulThe rain falls
My friends call
Leaking rain on the phoneTake a day plant some trees
May they shade you from me
May your children play beneathBlank page was all the rage
Never meant to say anything
In bed I was half dead
Tired of dreaming of restGot dressed drove the state line
Looking for you at the five and dime
But there I was picking pieces up
You are a ghost of my indecision
No more little girl
