You're Not Alone

Robert Muinos

You're in my head
For the moments wasted
I don't know which way to turn
And my pockets are all burned
You're in my head
I've been locked out
But my bags are still inside
I'm wandering around
All the faces look at mine
Won't you help me now

Could you be the one that I need right now
Are you just another one in the line?
And would you hold my hand through the smoke and the sand?
Would you breathe down my neck in time?
Could you be the one?

You're not alone
But you are inside your mind
Won't you open up the door
Put those memories aside
Just for a little while

Wheels don't brake
Sun don't shine
Till I know that you're mine
I'm on my knees and I'm out of time
Tryin' run through the fire

Could you be the one that I need right now?
Or are you just another one in the line?
And would you hold my hand through the smoke and the sand?
Or would you breathe down my neck in time?
Could you be the one?
