

Windrider

Ensiferum

He appears from the mists of a dismal lake
And the sky crumbles as he flies
Through the dimensions aloneThe night has laid a cape on his shoulders
And with a grin on his face he attacks
With his loyal soldiers, into the unknownThere's no place for him in this world and no ties
And all this hate and grief unite in his mindWindrider, seeks freedom with vengeance on his mind
To escape from the crimson sky grave and fly away
Windrider, is waiting for the final day
When he'll be released from the shackles of a slaveIn the eye of the storm he rides
With jaded memories of his life
As the fires are dancing colorfully
He is struggling to surviveTrapped in a maze, can't get away
What have you became now
Take the hammer of the elders
And crush your way outThere's no place for him in this world and no ties
And all this hate and grief unite in his mindWindrider, seeks freedom with vengeance on his mind
To escape from the crimson sky grave and fly away
Windrider, is waiting for the final day
When he'll be released from the shackles of a slaveHis presence is shaking the land
As he stands at the mountain peak
His instincts are getting weak
But there is still hunger in his eyes
That keeps him aliveHe wears the mask of the hunted
Arts of light for him have been granted
He lives in the fragments of time
Waiting for his time to dieWindrider, seeks freedom with vengeance on his mind
To escape from the crimson sky grave and fly away
Windrider, is waiting for the final day
When he'll be released from the shackles of a slaveWindrider
Windrider

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>