

Now That You're Gone

Stitched Up Heart

There's something in the air
I can feel it everywhere
If you look up at the stars
You can see them falling
There are men in uniform
That are knocking at the door
So I hide behind
The memory of you and me
Will time help
Heal the wounds
We knew what we were getting into
I don't know
If I can make it through the night
Now, now that you're gone
I'm wasting away
You left me here
It's so unfair
To live another day
Now, now that you're gone
And nothing's the same
I'll find a way to numb the pain
I'll carry on
All the pictures still repeat
On a screen inside my brain
And I can feel you walking
Through all of the flames
It's way too far to reach
And somehow it don't feel real
I wish I had the strength to feel
Will time help
Heal the wounds
We knew what we were getting into
I don't know
If I can make it through the night
Now, now that you're gone
I'm wasting away
You left me here
It's so unfair
To live another day
Now, now that you're gone
And nothing's the same
I'll find a way to numb the pain
I'll carry on
This is how it has to be
This war that we've lost

There is nothing left for me
Will keep tearing you apart long after us
This blood that's been shed
Will keep raining down until the endNow, now that you're gone
I'm wasting away
It's so unfair
To live another day
