Mama's Eyes

Justin Townes Earle

I am my father's son
I've never known when to shut up
I ain't fooling no one
I am my father's sonWe don't see eye to eye
And I'll be the first to admit I've never tried
It sure hurts me, it should hurt sometime
We don't see eye to eyeI was a young man when I first found the pleasure in the feel of a sin
And I went down the same road as my old man
Yeah, I was younger thenNow it's 3 a.m. and I'm standing in the kitchen
Holding my last cigarette
Strike a match and I see my reflection in the mirror in the hall
And I say to myself
