Danger Is My Middle Name

Lonely thoughts they seep, into mind

Into me, pushing deep

Wash the dirt, a hard days work

Know my place

On my own

No poison in my bones

On my own

This is where I build my home

My home

This will always be my home

I work until it's late

Walk in and close the gate

I look in the window

And I gaze at my face

Every line and every abrasion

This took my life to make

This took my life to make

On my own

No poison in my bones

On my own

This is where I build my home

My home

I need someone to hold

I need someone to hold

My home

This will always be my home

This will always be my home
