New Jersey

Jesse Spillane

You're an American girl
Red headed, eyes blank
Living in a freckle on the face of the worldAnother dying kid that learned too much too soon
You're not as good as your Mom, but you're as good as dead
You're as good as dead, New Jersey ain't the whole worldWhich of your shots have sold?
Twenty-nine with your child
Who doesn't give and eats what's left of your young soulAnother dying spark that burned too fast too soon
You're not as bad as your Dad, but you're as good as dead
You're as good as dead, New Jersey ain't the whole worldDon't you leave me out here too long
Will you bring me out there?
Don't you leave me out here too long
Will you bring me out there?You're an American girl
Out of line in out of time
A cry for the leading role, your bum childhood stoleA mother tires and stuck in her love-worn bed
You're not as good as your Mom, but you're as good as dead
You're as good as dead, New Jersey ain't the whole worldDon't you leave me out here too long
Will you bring me out there?
Don't you leave me out here too long
Will you bring me out there?Don't you leave me out here too long
Will you bring me out there?
Don't you leave me out here too long
Will you bring me out there?
