

Too Late

The Rembrandts

I kept you out past five, when we talk, we get so deep
The sun comes up too early and I know you need your sleep
But I can't let you go, with just one kiss from your tender lips
And I don't wanna wait, to feel the touch of your fingertips
Is it too late, too late, too late to love you
Is it too late, too late, too late to love you
It's only Sunday morning and the paper boy's gone by
I see you off to dreamland and all that that implies
But I can't let you go, with just one kiss from your tender lips
And I can't live without, the love I know that I know you give
Is it too late, too late, too late to love you
Is it too late, too late, too late to love you
How's I gonna get inside?
It seems no matter how I try
It's only ever down to you
Down to you
Now I can't let you go, with just one kiss from your tender lips
And I can't live without, the love I know that I know you give to me
Is it too late, too late, too late to love you
Is it too late, too late, too late to love you
Is it too late, too late, too late to love you
Is it too late?
