Never Chase a Boy

Emily James

He left a scar in your smile
And it will never look quite the same again Thought he loved you for a while
Thought it would never end
But now it hurts to look back, on all the times he held your hand,
You gave him all you had, he took it and ran.Clear his memory from the shelf,
You're so afraid of losing him, that you're losing yourself.
It's time to listen to your own voice.
Go on and chase your dreams,
but never chase a boy.
You see that long dark road
And try to figure out where you mistepped,
Somehow you ended up alone
Headed towards regret,
But the end is in sight
I know its hard but keep in mind
You get closer to the light
The higher you climbClear his memory from the shelf,
You're so afraid of losing him, that you're losing yourself.
It's time to listen to your own voice.
Go on and chase your dreams,
but never chase a boy.Ahh...Cause now you're faced with paths
One is sand and one is snow
You could follow his tracks
Or make your own
Clear his memory from the shelf,
You're so afraid of losing him, that you're losing yourself.
It's time to listen to your own voice.
Go on and chase your dreams,
but never chase a boy.Never chase a boy
