Romeo's Heart

John Farnham

J kimball, and r vanwarnerThere's no hero in this story And the ending is so sad In the ruins of my dreams we lie I would kill to win you backI should send you fields of roses Say I'll always wish you well But I had cast you as my juliet And you have cast me into hellFor those who have been wounded Where love has missed it's mark Bow your head and say a prayer Tonight for romeo's heartIn this wine I taste your kisses With this bread I break my word I will not die upon this cross for you All I feel for you is hurtI know the moon will rise again But there will be no starlight in my eyesFor those who have been wounded Where love has missed it's mark Bow your head and say a prayer Tonight for romeo's heart
