

West Texas Plains

Rosie Flores

Lonesome star in a big Texas Sky
Finds my heart in trouble tonight
And I rode all the way out here to discover
That the one I really love has found another. And this little town was full of romance for me
Now all I see are small dusty streets
But the music still pulls at my heart
Should I stay for get back in the car. Out on the West Texas Plains
You never know when the wind will change.
Maybe if I stay this pain will blow away
Out on the West Texas plains It's a small cafe with a blue neon sign
Same place he said he'd be mine
I pick out a different table for the view
Maybe someone would feel good too And I'll get along without him tonight
And the stars will shine just as bright
And maybe time will settle the dust
Is there room in this town for both of us Out on the West Texas Plains
You never know when the wind will change.
Maybe if I stay this pain will blow away
Out on the West Texas plains Out on the West Texas Plains
You never know when the wind will change.
Maybe if I stay this pain will blow away
Out on the West Texas plains Out on the West Texas plains Out on the West Texas plains Out on the West Texas plains
